

A first grader doesn't want to go to school

Quite often, the parents of those children who attend the first class, faced with the apparent unwillingness of the child to visit the school institution. They are surprised by the fact that apathy towards school and school learning occurs spontaneously, although in front of this child with great interest and success attended this institution.

The child's psyche is quite easy to injure, to avoid this parents should carefully analyze the resulting situation, they should identify all the reasons why he does not want to attend school, and by all means try to eliminate them. When this problem is resolved, the child will be, as before, to attend school educational institution.

Reasons why a child may reject a presence in his school life, there are very a sufficient amount. Initially the parents will have to talk about this with their child. The purpose of the conversation – identification of an unwillingness to walk in the mornings to school.

In that case, when the child starts something to tell my parents or even to complain to him worth listening to. The way out of the situation moms and dads should help you find a psychologist working at the school.

The child may refuse to attend school this plan due to accumulated fatigue. The school itself is for a first grader is already an enormous burden, and then it begins to add various clubs and activities in sports clubs. The child begins to get tired. In this case, professional resume company it is necessary to provide daily rest. You should also monitor children's sleep, the same sleep deprivation can negatively affect your morning mood and mental state.

Parents should remember that baby may refuse going to school due to strained relations with the teacher or classmates. Because of the constant discomfort that was felt as a kid, his mood is always depressed.

Many teachers behave quite uneducational, humiliating and insulting the children during the lesson. The conflict between teacher and student occurs often in that case, if he, or shy, or, on the contrary, very energetic.

In the solution of such a conflict, parents should take the side of the child, to reproach him in any case impossible. As soon as the child will feel the parent's support, he's going to talk about, what reason prevents him from attending school educational institution.
